DANIELSON

Every small boy in this town will be saving his pennies when he discovers today that the advertising car for a circus is in Danielson and that the big tented attraction which it is ahead of will be here in due time.

Incidentally the fact that Danielson is going to have a circus will be good news to some who are no longer boys and who are now wearing long trousers—when they're not playing golf.

The show that is scheduled to come here will be the first of its kind and magnitude to exhibit in Danielson for several years. It is a railroad show of long established reputation.

Saturday morning the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Lyons, wife of James Lyons, was held at their home in Central Village with services at All Hollows' church in Moscow, where a solemn high mass of requiem, of which Rev. J. E. McCarthy was celebrant, was sung. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery at Danville. The bearers were Thomas Hanley, William Hanley, Nathaniel Allen, Thomas Moran, Thomas Moran, Jr., Edward Moran, Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Having started a fund for the purchase of an automobile for the use of the chief, A. P. Woodward, members of the Danielson Fire department will continue their efforts to obtain the sum they require to realize their purpose. The department's percentage from the annual recently held here was a little less than $100. One of the possibilities being considered by department members for raising more money is a tag day.

Anticipating very high prices for coal next winter as the result of the drawn-out strike of anthracite miners, some forward-thinking residents of Danielson are already buying unusually liberal supplies of coalwood and are busy storing them in their cellars.

Members of the Danielson Baptist Sunday School association to the annual meeting of the Ashford Baptist Sunday school to be held on Wednesday at the Spring Hill church, Mansfield.

The work of painting the Congregational church and parsonage is to be taken up at once. New sidewalks also are to be put down. A special fund that has been nearly completed will be used in defraying the costs of the undertaking.

Members of the Fortnightly club have a pleasant outing planned for Tuesday. When they will be guests of Mrs. Catherine Mulvey at the Bill cottage on the shore of Alexander's lake. A basket lunch is to be served.

A heavy thunderstorm that broke during the early hours of Sunday morning continued with a heavy downpour until early noon, until late in the afternoon, attendance at church services throughout the town.

A wedding of interest to the people of a number of towns hereabouts will take place July 6 at the Congregational church in Central Village when Miss Mary Hayes of that place will become the bride of Harry Marsh, son of Rev. J. E. McCarthy.

Somewhere beneath the mud and state-like surface of Central Village Main street a section of state highway is laid. It is assumed that the state highway commission knows about the mud and the time will have a party of searchers down there endeavoring to locate the lost route and to reconstruct it. The street surface today offers about the same kind of a hazard to the motorist as bumping the bumps in a car. Incidentally, the Connecticut company has one side of the street torn up to add to the problem of the motorist or drivers of other vehicles in getting through the stretch. It's a great experience, is a ride over this street, which is in a condition to invite accidents unless extreme care is exercised by drivers—and it's a section of trunk line highway at that.

This is Go-to-Work week for a considerable number who have completed their school work either until September or permanently. Some pupils who have not reached the age of 14 years have obtained permits to work during the period of the summer vacation.

A herd of tuberculosis tested Guernsey cows is being accompanied by the Wagon company. The animals are at the big farm barn of the company. This herd being assembled will assure a supply of clean milk and cream.

Miss Mary and Dorothy Day, nurses at St. Luke's hospital, New York, are visiting at their home, The Maples, on the Goodbye road.

Mushroom-like, yardwide refreshment stands are springing up along all the trunk line highways in this section. The success achieved by some who have ventured into this line is attracting others into the field, so the traveler today need not ride far before finding one of these stands and opportunity for a cooling drink or light lunch, or both.

New telephone directories have been issued and the listings shown became effective on Sunday. The Danielson division now take well in excess of 1,000 stations, scattered through the towns of

PUTNAM

It has been noted with interest by the people in this corner of Windham county that Judge Newton I. Mills has been called to assist in the defense of Clarence Ward of New York, who confessed shooting a man named Peters. Ward is being held on a charge of murder. Special reference to St. John was made in the sermon, and during the service America was sung by the choir.

Eastern Connecticut fishermen who enjoy fishing in the town and city, were warned to be careful not to get into the Rhode Island waters that make up part of the pond unless they have a fishing license. The same warning can be applied in the case of Old Killingly pond, part of which is in Rhode Island, and which is a favorite fishing place during the busy season, which opens next Saturday.

East Killingly will get electric lights if the manufacturing concerns in that place arrange for the use of sufficient power to make the remainder of the venture profitable, it is understood. The lighting company needs the business of the mill companies before venturing into the expensive undertaking of running lines to that village. The residents of which are very anxious to have electric lights and electricity for other uses.

Robert Burns of New York has been spending a few days with relatives in Danielson.

It has been suggested by some business interests that it would be nice if some arrangement could be brought about for putting permanent pavement in that section of street running northward from Main past the railroad station and in the rear of the Exchange building and around to Main street at the Danielson Trust company. These interests believe that the cost would only be incidental to the very great improvement that would be brought about.

Herman Miller, who was injured last week when he fell off an automobile chassis that was being towed, has practically recovered from the effects of his hurts and is working regularly.

The opening of July will be marked by the filling up of the majority of cottages and summer camps on the shores of Alexander's lake, where some families already are located for the season.
